

Provincial Court of British Columbia

Provincial Court judges preside in more than 80 locations around the province. Where there is not a full-time court, judges and court teams travel to the community to hold court. These sittings are called circuit courts because the court party sometimes travels a circuit, holding court in several communities during a week.

Communities served by circuit courts include:

- Bella Bella and Klemtu
- Massett and Daajing Giids on Haida Gwaii
- Atlin, Good Hope Lake, and Lower Post
- Kwadacha and Tsay Keh Dene
- Dease Lake and Stewart
- Anahim Lake
- Bella Coola
- Ahousaht

Judges are assigned to a circuit court for several years so they can get to know the communities and provide consistent decision making.

In each of the Court's administrative regions, judges, court staff and lawyers also travel regularly to smaller communities where the Court doesn't sit full-time, including Port Hardy, Powell River, Pemberton, Princeton, Alexis Creek, McBride, Merritt, Invermere and many others.
